Note: There are references within this book to elements of care other than trimming the feet. If you are new to the concepts of Natural Hoof Care versus conventional farriery, you may not be aware of the purpose of those additional, but vitally important, elements. Natural Hoof Care is not just about what happens at the foot.

Early hoof care also needs to be followed with routine, continuous care to optimize proper hoof and leg structure, performance and long term soundness of their equine friend. Some foals may be born with major hoof and leg deviations that will require more than early hoof trimming techniques (these foals may require veterinary care or surgery) to minimize these deviations.
